INSTRUCTION FOR SUPERVISORS

State Highway Department to Conduct Meeting in Bedford Mar. 24.

Under a plan outlined by the State Highway Department, a series of meetings will be held throughout the State to consider the improvement of all roads. With this object in view a number of meetings will be held of all supervisors in different localities in order to inaugurate a uniformity in the building of roads, the kind of material to be used, the keeping of accounts and the close collection of road tax. The Highway Commissioner will furnish the supervisors blanks that they may keep their accounts in a systematic manner.

Under an act passed at the last Legislature, all townships complying with the act and meeting the specifications as provided by the bureau of highways will receive the sum of $20 per mile of road.

The meeting for this county is fixed for Tuesday, March 24, at 10 a. m. in the Court House at Bedford. Speakers will outline the method the State has laid down for a uniform system of road building.

These meetings should be attended not only by every supervisor but the taxpayers as well should put forth strenuous efforts to be present. They are in the interest of the taxpayer and he should give encouragement to this work by his presence in Bedford on the above date.

MORE SMALL POX

Chancysville Visited This Time With Mild Form of the Disease.

The little town of Chancysville, in Southampton Township, is infested with a mild form of small pox. The disease has been in the locality for about three months but the patients all waited on themselves and got well.

The disease was brought from Cumberland, Md., by a boy of that vicinity. This gave it to the other members of that family and they in turn spread it to other families, when it finally attacked one who called in a physician from Rainsburg, Dr. Fawcett. Dr. Fawcett called Dr. Hill at Everett immediately and the two met in consultation. The school was closed and all meetings of all character were postponed.

Again Chosen Chief

At a postponed meeting of the Bedford Fire Department held Tuesday night, officers for the ensuing year were elected. William R. Piper, who has been the efficient Chief for the past ten years, was again unanimously elected to that position. The company has a membership of 30, and the boys are anxiously waiting for nice weather in order to give the engine a tryout at practice.

He further stated that with the united support of his co-workers Democratic success was assured next fall. Mr. Barkman was also elected Treasurer, and Jo W. Tate and M. W. Corle were re-elected Secretaries, they having no opposition.

Eight names were then presented as members of the Executive Committee, five to be elected. The result of the ballot showed the following to be successful: Frank E. Colvin, Esq., Dr. Walter P. Enfield, Judge J. W. Huff, A. B. Egolf and John L. Bortz. The resolutions were then presented and read to the convention. They were unanimously adopted and they are as follows:

Resolutions

Resolved, That the Democrats of this county, state and nation are to be congratulated on being for the first time in fifty years in full and complete possession of all Departments of the Federal Government.

That we heartily endorse the wise, and peaceful and patriotic administration of President Wilson.

That his administration has given the American people a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

That we feel as a majority of the American people that President Wilson, and Secretary Bryan, have handled, and are handling, and will continue to handle the delicate and difficult problems with Mexico with honor and credit to the nation.

Every day that passes without intervention and war is an additional tribute to the ability with which they have handled this matter.

That with these wise men at the helm of the state, reckless men and scheming grafters will not drive this country to war with Mexico or any other country.

Be it further resolved that we approve the constructive legislation passed by Congress, giving the people relief from the high protective tariff of the Republican party and the antiquated banking system of fifty years ago.

We point with pride to the brilliant leadership of the progressive Democrats by our National Committeeman, A. Mitchell Palmer, and feel confident that he will be the United States Senator from Pennsylvania.

Resolved, That we endorse the hearty support given to the progressive cause by our advanced leader, Hon. Vance C. McCormick, who is a candidate for Governor on the Democratic ticket of this great Commonwealth and the active, energetic and patriotic effort of our State Chairman, Hon. Roland S. Morris.

Resolved, That we recognize in the person of Hon. William T. Cressy, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, the farmer's friend, one who has upheld all the advanced positions of Democracy in his new birth

Rule V

These rules may be amended at any meeting of the County Committee, duly convened for such purpose.

Rule VI

All rules heretofore adopted by the Democratic Party of Bedford County are abrogated and annulled, and these rules shall be the only rules of said Democratic Party of Bedford County, until amended.

John C. Nicholson, in a few appropriate remarks, paying high tribute to President Woodrow Wilson and Secretary of State William J. Bryan, presented the following resolution:

"Resolved, That this convention declare for the passage of a straight county unit Local Option law by the next Legislature of the State of Pennsylvania."

A standing vote was taken on the resolution and it was adopted by 21 to 2. A vote of thanks was extended to Hon. J. T. Matt, the retiring County Chairman, for the manner in which he conducted previous campaigns, and for his loyalty to the party.

This ended the business of the convention. Brief but enthusiastic speeches were then made by Mr. Matt and Dr. Americus Enfield, thus bringing to a close one of the largest and most enthusiastic committee meetings ever held by the party in Bedford County.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Some Notes Made in Pittsburgh at a "Billy" Sunday Meeting.

Bedford, Pa., March 17.—I just came to dear old Bedford feeling very miserable and to save me I could not tell what ailed me. However, I feel much better after spending a couple of days at the celebrated Corle House, where everything is clean as a new pin and where there may always be found a jolly crowd of boarders. Mrs. Smith, assisted by Paul, certainly know how to take care of their boarders.

Some weeks ago when in Pittsburgh at one of Billy Sunday's meetings I made some notes and think I said that I would give them to you, but I have had so much to think of since and to write about that I have overlooked my promise and only today when taking all the papers out of my pockets did I find the notes which I will now give you.

"Some men are not men at all but simply frames on which to hang clothes." Said a small boy once to his father when he saw one of the clothing dummies outside a clothing store, "Dad is that a man?" "No, son, that is only a professor." The only thing that makes some men look like men is the fact that they wear clothes. Dress them up in hobbie skirts and churn hats and they'll look like women. Many walk the streets with not much in them. Then again we have men with gigantic minds, men like our puritan fathers; men with fire in their bones as well as their eyes; men of tremendous energy; men who inspire us all by their worthy and noble purposes in life. I believe it is better to be a real man than an angel. Man came into the world as the most helpless creature in it. All he knows he had to learn as he grew in knowledge and power spurred on and made an inventor. Why he filled the rivers, yes and the patent office with his various inventions. He watched the sleepy rivers creep on toward the sea and concluded that he could press them into service, grind his grist and to do a million and one things. Why in his kettle where he boiled his dinner he found a sleeping giant. He kicked him out of bed and sent him to work. He saw the lightning playing leap frog in the skies and taught us how to make a light that tries to outlive the skies. With his puny lungs he found that he could not roar like the lion or scream like the eagle, so he made for himself a throat of brass, and through the telegraphs, the hello girl and the wireless, he has covered the world.

With all this at his hand man is not yet master. He builds his ships and brags of their stability and beautiful appearances. Yes, great is the progress he has made. He even charts the seas; he walks on their bottom; he sails above the clouds; he has played leap-frog with the rain-bows in yonder heavens; he has done the circle swing and the dip of death in his flying machine; he breaks down and blends metals as he pleases; he scours the earth for his luxury; he sits drowsily in the sun as it filters through stained glass windows; he arrays himself in the costliest of furs and fabrics; he bedecks his person with jewels from a thousand miles; he whirls past with the speed of the winds in his auto and in his going and coming he feels that he is master. But no, God is still master.

Then, we hear man say, what is it that I need most, wealth? Behold it in our hands, we are living in a land that flows with milk and honey, richest that yonder sun shines upon. Is it power, God has given it to us as to no other nation? Yet there is not a spot upon which we are safe, where we do not need to prepare for death. There is not a second of time when we can say, "I will not die."

Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

AGRICULTURE IN RURAL SCHOOL

Up-to-date Farmer Says This Study Should Be Adopted.

The very common topic of today should be changed from "Back to the Land" to "Stay on the Farm, Boys." Why do our boys and girls leave the farm when so many untilled and half-tilled acres lie around them, ready for development of the great opportunities they offer?

We think city attractions are the cause. Is it not rather lack of rural attractions? Attractions count and should count in every life, if the truer and nobler ideals are to be attained. Let the farm supply them.

It is surprising that our rural school, as now constituted, gives not the slightest inspiration for farm life. Is it not equally amazing that we have not realized this and applied the remedy? The rural school should be the great inspirer and developer of this noble occupation. An occupation on which all society rests, and with which all other occupations should harmonize. A course in an agricultural college, if the college be up to date, is most helpful, but how small part of our boys get it? The state and national governments are spending large amounts to educate our older farmers, whose ideas and habits are pretty thoroughly fixed and too often rutted. Results are not commensurate with the cost, in part because we are too old or too slow to learn, and possibly, that at times, those who assume to teach the farmer, are unqualified to teach, having only theory untried or unprofitable in practice. More intent on holding down a good job than the farmers real uplift. This is zeal without knowledge, so long as we overlook the true starting point, the rural school opportunities of the farmers of the future, the farm boys. To him we must look, and if it is not to be a future of abandoned or unprofitable farms and over-crowded cities, with each striving for the other's job or in many cases joining the bread-line, we must revolutionize (don't get scared) our rural school and make it the medium by which our boys and girls may get a training and an inspiration that will fit them for farm life. Not the farm life drudge, that through inefficiency makes a failure or that worse one that only estimates life by dollars and acres. Our schools today only aim to fit for the counting-room, and even fail largely here because of our narrow vision.

A false idea exists, even with educators, that we must allow the boy the bent of his mind. A bent, he declares inherited, and which he must follow or fall. If that were true a long line of farmers for generations would surely transmit this bent to their boys and they would as naturally take to farming as a duck to water. But where are your boys today? In the big towns largely and ought sooner have known the reason why such is the case. To change this is easy, if we but go after it. Many sections are having agriculture taught in their rural schools with great results. Knockers sure we'll have as we have them everywhere, and even where we ought least expect them, but it is only a matter of time till such instruction shall be general, but hope deferred maketh the heart sick, so let us for the general good, get a move on.

To those who have never observed, even an elementary introduction of agriculture in rural school work, it is almost unbelievable what an inspiration comes to the boys and girls, when thoughts pertaining to their unexplored farm life are brought to their attention. The variety of soils, the plant foods contained therein or required to produce crops, the work of legumes as nitrogen gatherers, the functions of humus, capillary attraction and conservation of moisture, the manner in which plants get food, and condition of soil best suited for such feeding, seed germination, sex in plants and proper pollination, budding, grafting, study of birds, useful and destructive, poultry and other farm animals, foods for them and us, fruits as to their varieties, uses and culture. These and the thousand other golden nuggets and "acres of diamonds" that open up a world of thought and study that will give a new birth to the farm life of our boys and girls, and possibly some of our girls.

They are doing it. Walter Dunson of Alabama raised 232 bushels shelled corn per acre, at a cost of 20c per bushel. Jerry Moore of South Carolina 227.75 bushels at 42c. Bennie Benson of Mississippi 227 bushels. In 1910, 100 boys made over 100 bushels shelled corn per acre in the United States. One young girl did this also, and many girls are making remarkable yields of tomatoes. All a result of the teaching of agriculture, and the influence for good to these communities can not be measured by bushels and dollars.

Something must be done to redeem the rural school, this is the opportunity, will we embrace it? I believe we will.

We trust our public press will help us in this much needed movement and that next week we may hear from many who are ready to lend their aid to place our schools on such basis as will give inspiration and uplift to farm life. A. C. Richards. Scheilsburg, Pa.

Arranging for the Future. The little girl objected, quite naturally, to wearing her older sister's outgrown clothes. One day, in protesting while being dressed with such a garment, she exclaimed: "It's real mean, and when I get married, I'm going to have my youngest child first, so that she won't have to wear her sister's old clothes."—Saturday Evening Post.

THIS NEW MEDICINE

We are druggists right here in your town and make a living out of the drug business, but it is because people have to have drugs and not because we like to see people suffer—we don't. Our duty is to render the best service we can, and when someone is ailing, we are interested in seeing them take the best medicine there is for their particular trouble. We don't recommend "cure-alls," as we don't believe there are such things. We don't want you to spend more money than you have to. Some of you get small wages, and when you're sick, none at all, and you should get the most you can for your money.

We recently came across a new remedy for increasing strength and building up people who are run-down and emaciated. We know that a slight trouble sometimes grows into a serious one, and to stop it in the beginning, will save you money in the end. This new compound is called Reckall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is the best remedy when you are run-down, tired out, nervous—no matter what the cause. It doesn't merely stimulate you and make you feel good for a few hours, but takes hold of the weakness and builds you up to a healthy, normal condition. It is a real nerve-food tonic and builder of good blood, strong muscle, good digestion. It contains Hypophosphites, which tone the nerves, and pure Olive Oil, which nourishes the nerves, the blood and the entire system. Pleasant to take. Contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. We promise that if you are not perfectly satisfied with it, we'll give back your money as soon as you tell us. Sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00.—F. W. Jordan, Jr., Bedford, Pa.—Adv.

sibly some of us older ones also. With agriculture will eventually come, to the rural school, domestic science and manual training. All of which will so enlarge their vision and fill up their lives with newer ideas and methods, that farm life will be to our children, not the common drudge but the road to a successful life, estimated not only in dollars but in true character building; an intelligent and wide awake citizenship; the redemption, not only of the rising generation on the farms, but the awakening of many of us older farmers to better methods, higher ideals and a farm life that will appeal to old and young alike.

It was nothing to our credit that we waited so long for Parcel Post which had long passed the experimental stage in so many countries, but the big express (R. R.) companies were in the way. In this movement there is really nothing to hinder, aside from our indifference, so easy is its accomplishment. But you say: we already have too many studies in our schools. I'll not deny it, but while we quibble on which we shall eliminate, we will get nothing done. Do this: On Monday substitute agriculture for geography; Wednesday for language; Friday for some other branch till you determine which, if any, shall be dropped. In this way a good start will be made. For the usually impractical arithmetic, so far as our farm children are concerned, substitute "A Practical Arithmetic," published by Charles Scribners Sons, or others equally good, with problems suited to farm lines as well as mathematical training. Many excellent books on "Agriculture in Public Schools" are already out, from which a wise selection should be made by capable persons. These all make the basis for supplementary and composition work that will transform rural school life, when supplemented with a true concern on the part of school officials, for the best interests of the school. In all cases simplifying and aiding in the government, by filling the minds of, otherwise mischievous boys, with thoughts that stimulate him to enjoyable and useful work. Expense? Very little, and that little will bring big dividends. Boys and girls' clubs will follow, "a little child shall lead them" shall be literal.

Big Democratic Enrollment

Democrats in close touch with the situation in the State put forth a claim that the largest vote ever polled in a Democrat primary election in Pennsylvania will be cast throughout the State on May 19. At State headquarters it is said that during the last few days reports had been received from about fifty county chairmen in all parts of the State, regarding the Democratic enrollment figures. About five hundred precincts were covered by the reports, and they were said to be typical of all kinds of communities. City, town, rural and borough districts were included in each county's report, as were agricultural, mining, manufacturing and residential sections. In practically every case it was said the Democratic enrollment of this time was found to be larger than the Democratic vote for President Wilson in 1912.

The Democrats in sympathy with the State Organization pointed to this fact as an indication of the increased activity and enthusiasm of the Democratic workers under the new conditions in the party, and also declared that it indicated the feeling of confidence which prevailed among Democrats everywhere in the State. The increased enrollment is ascribed to the great interest that is being taken in the primary contest for the control of the Democratic organization and for the nomination of State candidates.

Another interesting fact brought out in the reports of the county leaders, according to these Democrats, was the increasing evidence of a drift of independence and progressive voters into the Democratic party. The Democratic State leaders declare that there is a well-defined movement in the counties where progressive sentiment is strongest toward the Democratic party. Thousands of voters, it is said, who voted the Progressive ticket in 1913 are enrolling in the Democratic column because of the record of the Wilson administration along radical progressive lines. It is conceded that most of these men will support the so-called administration ticket in the primaries. The increased Democratic enrollment is regarded as peculiarly remarkable in view of the fact that there are still days ahead when voters can formally enroll their party preference. Voters who live in boroughs and towns had this opportunity on March 17 and 18. Voters in first and second class cities that use Philadelphia, Scranton and Pittsburgh may register and enroll on April 15 and voters who live in third class cities will have the same opportunity on April 29. Strenuous efforts have been made by the State Democratic organization to secure a heavy registration enrollment on these days and Democrats declare that the results of this work will be apparent in the vote at the primary election and in November.

Will Not Be Deceived

Somehow we cannot escape the conviction that the election of a Democratic Governor and United States Senator from Pennsylvania is not such a remote possibility as some of our Republican brethren would have us believe. If the candidacy of Vance McCormick, for Governor, and A. Mitchell Palmer, for United States Senator, is such easy picking for the Penrose machine, why not encourage it, instead of trying to conjure up difficulties to prevent their nomination?

The vigor and unanimity with which these two gentlemen are being assailed by the Republican press of this State is susceptible of but one interpretation, and that is the well grounded fear that they may prove too strong for Penrose & Company to handle in November. That being the case it is only natural that the Republican managers, through their mouthpiece, the press, should endeavor to stir up strife in which they ignominiously failed, just as it will this year. The anti-liquor people will hardly be deceived by Penrose and Oliver's eleventh hour conversion. Oliver knows that his own political fortunes are so closely interwoven with the Senator's that they are practically identical.

It is easy to account for the milk in the coconut in this case. Hence, the united attack on Palmer, and of course McCormick as Governor, would be just as unpalatable as Palmer for Senator. The game is a pretty one but too clumsy to deceive.

Large Amount for Accidents.

The Pennsylvania Railroad last year paid out $5,143.40 on account of accidents to passengers who tripped over other passengers' grips placed in the aisles on passenger trains. That is one of the reasons why the company instructs its trainmen not to permit baggage to "loose" in the aisles of passenger coaches.

FROM THE FRONT

Meadville, Pa.—The Crawford County Democrats have organized a county league to further the cause of Vance C. McCormick for Governor and A. Mitchell Palmer for United States Senator. Officers were elected as follows: President, Oscar H. Roubesh; Treasurer, W. R. McGill; Secretary, J. E. Shaugnessy.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Democratic City Committee, dominated by Chas. P. Donnelly, old guard leader, have endorsed the candidacy for Governor of Michael J. Ryan of Philadelphia. A minority of the committee, representing wards where there is a large concentrated Democratic vote, refused to vote for the endorsement and recorded their approval of Vance C. McCormick's candidacy.

New Castle, Pa.—At a regular meeting of the Democratic County Committee of Lawrence County, held March 7, 1914, resolutions were unanimously adopted endorsing the reorganization of the Democratic party, and approving the candidacy of A. Mitchell Palmer for United States Senator and Vance C. McCormick for Governor.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Democratic Club of Philadelphia, the largest club in the city, and the only all-Philadelphia Democratic organization, endorsed the candidacies of Vance C. McCormick and A. Mitchell Palmer by a vote of more than 6 to 1. In doing so, the club deliberately overturned a precedent, which has never been broken, against the endorsement of candidates before the primaries. The action was taken as an answer to the endorsement given to Mr. McCormick's opponent by the old guard city committee. The club has nearly 1,000 members.

A reception will be given at the club house on the day following Jefferson's birthday, Monday, April 13, at which it is hoped that Congressman, Palmer, Mr. McCormick, William T. Creasy and other prominent reorganization Democrats will be present.

Scranton, Pa.—The Democrats of South Scranton have given further evidence of the activity and hopefulness of the Democrats in this section by organizing a big Democratic Club to co-operate with the Central City Club. The North Scranton Wilson Club, already in existence, has been converted into a Palmer-McCormick Club.

Waynesburg, Pa.—The Democrats of this town have organized a Palmer-McCormick League with the following officers: President, John F. Pauley, Chairman of the Democratic County Committee; Secretary and Treasurer, J. H. Zimmerman.

Among those who have been appointed to places on the club's committees are: T. J. Ross, Sheriff G. M. Weimer, County Treasurer M. E. Garard, J. H. Burge, James McCracken, J. R. Scott, Dr. F. S. Ulom, S. M. Smith and A. Ray Maple.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The first Palmer-McCormick Club of Allegheny County and the first Democratic Club ever formed in East McKeesport, has been organized there amid the greatest enthusiasm. The club has the following officers: President, John Watkins; Vice President, John Churchfield; Secretary, W. C. Gillis; Treasurer, John Shannon.

Dillsburg, Pa.—The "Upper End Democratic Club of York County" was organized here and endorsed the candidacies of A. Mitchell Palmer for United States Senator, Vance C. McCormick for Governor and William T. Creasy for Lieutenant Governor.

The officers are: President, Alex. Lehmer; Vice President, Peter Seidel; Corresponding Secretary, J. Robert McClure; Recording Secretary, J. Lapp; Treasurer, Levi Myers.

Sewickley, Pa.—The Woodrow Wilson-Palmer-McCormick Club of the Sewickley Valley has been organized and endorsed the candidacies of Palmer and McCormick as the administration ticket. W. D. George was made Chairman and L. C. Wood, Secretary.

A feature of the meeting was the presence of a score of young men who had previously been aligned with the Republican party, but who have chosen to take up the fight at the coming election with the Democrats.

Ellwood City, Pa.—The Lawrence County Democrats organized a Palmer-McCormick Club here, endorsed the candidacies of these two aggressive Democrats and pledged their active efforts to their support and in support of the progressive Democratic cause. Addresses were made by William McCormick, J. J. Meneice, F. Brooks, Thomas Wilson, Louis King, John H. Nye and others.

Sunday School News

Every Sunday School worker is a vital part of a great cause. The biggest business of this country, notwithstanding our splendid industrial, commercial and agricultural enterprises, is the enterprise of the Kingdom of God. The church at no time expresses her life more beautifully than when she opens the Word and searches the Scriptures and translates them into Christian character.

Every officer and teacher in a Sabbath School has a high privilege of service in this great cause. In one respect at least this is a great Sunday School county. For of our 32,000 inhabitants more than 17,000 are identified with our Sunday Schools. This is about 44%, a very good percentage indeed. While we are a great Sunday School people from this point of view, if we wish to keep pace with the world Sunday School movement we need to strengthen our work along departmental lines. Cradle Rolls, Home Departments, Organized Adult Bible Classes, Secondary Division Classes, and Teacher Training Classes.

We, as your County Executive Officers, have expressed our confidence in the Sunday School workers of this county by passing a motion unanimously that we aim to reach the Advanced Standard for county Sunday School work by our next state convention in October. We therefore challenge you as members of a local school to enthusiastically support and to faithfully assist in working your own school, and thus help the county reach her goal, the Advanced Position. All the ten points of the Local School will help you do more efficient service in the Sunday School cause.

A BOY'S WORK

[Published in Altoona Tribune, February 13, 1914.]

The following is the third of a series of articles written for the Altoona Tribune by the late Edgar Kitchen Faus.

Editor, Altoona Tribune:—You have previously published two letters, which I have written to the boys reading the Tribune. Now on my fifteenth birthday I should like to write again on the subject of A Boy's Work.

There are several reasons I should like to give in favor of boys working between school hours, and during vacation.

In order of importance the first is to keep out of mischief. At first thought it might seem that putting this reason first is a reflection on the character of the average boy. It is not, however, any more than it is a reflection on the citizens of a community to abolish saloons. The removal of temptation is not weakness; it is good judgment. We all have evil tendencies in our natures, and there is no time when we are less able to resist temptation than when we are idle. Hence employment is as an ounce of prevention, making the pound of cure unnecessary.

Knowledge of the world is something that everybody needs, but which few people gain before making some sad blunders. By work, especially such work as brings a boy in contact with business and people he acquires such knowledge in a natural and wholesome way. A large number of boys graduate from high school without the faintest idea of how business is conducted. The experience resulting from sudden and wholesale exposure of ignorance on this line is often very bitter.

Along with knowledge of the world gained by work a boy passes through experiences of value, and makes associations that are dear to him in later life. I have been a carrier for three Altoona papers, have managed a large magazine route, have sold cakes, spent three months as a caddy for golf players, and have held other jobs—all of which I have enjoyed. At present I am canvassing for books, work which is very interesting, as it constantly brings one in contact with different types of people. On the whole my work has been and is quite profitable, and I've saved a reasonable amount of money, having started a fund for college. But as I look back over it now, I can see that the experiences, the associations and the contact with human nature, which my work afforded, have all been more valuable than the money earned. By this I do not mean that everything went smoothly. In fact I've had unpleasant occurrences and disagreeable duties—as my associates have had. However my trials as well as—and perhaps more than—my successes have developed me, and I'm thankful that it has been and is necessary for me to work.

By work we discover our own abilities and limitations. Many a boy bordering twenty in age has no idea what kind of work he can do. The result is that often two or three precious years of life are wasted in work for which he has no ability or inclination. By improving his spare time in any worthy job a boy soon finds his place in the world. There's no person on earth a boy needs to know better than himself. Hence we should honestly consider our talents and weaknesses. It's not conceit to explore the possibilities of our nature, but just common sense.

Not wishing to use too much space, I must be brief in mentioning the development of self-reliance as another reason for work. The boy, who depends upon himself for his spending money, is more likely to depend upon the patience of the same fellow to solve his algebra problems. Self-reliance makes a good background for character showing one's other qualities to the best advantage. Our great men have been men who through the necessity of working in the early days of their lives, have cultivated qualities of self-reliance, which contributed largely to their success.

There has recently been much editorial discussion on the subject of boys' work. Some have said that the associations of the street are harmful, and that the money earned by boys on the streets goes for cigarettes and the "movies." This is a problem applying to some cases, but the dangers of street environment can be largely counteracted by home influences. A boy with a stable character and with proper home atmosphere will derive far more good than harm from regular work on the streets. As to the money spent for cigarettes, and the "movies," it should be remembered that idlers spend money in this way too. However, I do believe there's cause for concern about the number of small boys going out on the streets to work, especially if left without home restrictions or oversight. Boys under ten are likely to be injured by contact with street life.

There are many kinds of employment for boys besides street work. I think that a boy should take his choice in his use of spare time. The farm, the shop, the office, the store—all furnish opportunities for boys' hunting work. Different boys have different tastes and interests but there are chances for all who are willing to work.

Anything but idleness! If we are to escape temptation, if we are to develop ourselves physically, mentally and morally, to gain a knowledge of business and people, and fit ourselves for a useful and worthy place in the world, it is very important that we acquire the habit of work.

Before closing I'd like to make an explanation, I'd be very sorry if any person reading this letter should misunderstand me, and think I underestimate the value of education. I believe in all the education possible, and am sure that a high school and college education is the best investment for any young man. What I have written and suggested in this letter applies only to the use of spare time—afternoons, Saturdays and vacations. A boy's first work should be his school work. Along with school let him try his hand at anything in which he is interested or which comes natural to him, so long as it does not interfere with his progress in school. Usually those who are getting along best at school are most ambitious to use their spare time to advantage at some other work.

Edgar Kitchen Faus.

After the publication of this third and last article he jotted down in his diary the following subjects for the continuation of the series of letters to boys: A Boy's Self, A Boy's Ambitions, A Boy's Companions, A Boy's Surroundings, A Boy's Education, A Boy's Opportunities, A Boy's Purpose, A Boy's Thoughts, A Boy's Religion.

PALMER ON MCCORMICK

The following is an extract from Hon. A. Mitchell Palmer's Pittsburgh address to Democrats:

"I am going to tell the Democrats of the rest of the State that you Western Pennsylvania people have sprung a surprise party on us, when I get back to pursue the campaign. Now, my friends, you might expect me in view of what your toastmaster had said, to discuss before you tonight questions relating wholly and entirely to the United States Senatorship. But I feel that there are other things in this preliminary campaign which are more important than the Senatorship in view of the fact that the only candidate for the Democratic nomination for Senator has no opposition for the place, and so I want to say a word first of all about that which is a burning issue in the Democratic party in every corner of the State, the question of nomination for Governor.

"I have no hesitation in declaring myself. I am for Vance C. McCormick for Governor. And no fear of being accused of entering into a factional strife will deter me from saying in every nook and corner of Pennsylvania, what my conviction is upon that question, and my reasons for it. I do not believe that a good, healthy contest for the nomination for Governor will hurt the party in Pennsylvania. And if we make it live and strong and right, the outcome of that contest is certain to make for the everlasting glory of our party and our state.

"I am for McCormick because I know him. I know how clean, how able, how courageous he is. My mind goes back to the days of my youth when as a college boy I watched him from afar, leading his battalions to victory upon many a gridiron until he became known as the 'Yale Bulldog.' I watched him after that as he went into politics and public life, and observed how when a mere slip of a boy he was elected by his people to the mayoralty of the Capitol City of the State and made a record to which Harrisburg people still point with pride. In Harrisburg they reckon time by the McCormick administration, just as we think of events which happened before the flood or after the flood.

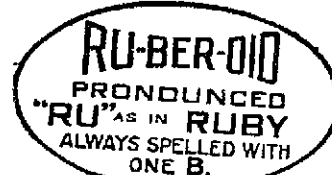

"He says he is no orator. Well, if he were not, I would not be deterred from supporting him. We do not need a talker at Harrisburg, we need a fighter; and God knows Vance C. McCormick is one fighter. We need a business man to conduct a business administration of our State's affairs, and the State nowhere has a more capable business man than he. But I am inclined to think that if McCormick gets going in this campaign he will say some things which will make the opposition believe that he is an orator to be feared.

"He has lived alongside of Republican misrule at Harrisburg through all his life and he has lived so close to it that he could smell it. And I prophesy that Pennsylvania is going to be awakened before this campaign is over by revelations of Republican misrule by this man, who, like Mark Antony says he is no orator.

"For the first time in the history of Pennsylvania it will be necessary for the candidates for Senator and Governor to go about the State together as men upon the same ticket, for this is the first time in the history of our State, when the people themselves have been called upon directly to elect a United States Senator. I thank God with you tonight that the time has come when representation in the upper house of the American Congress may be brought home as close to the people as representation in the lower house.

"I feel so strongly that after all this is a Pennsylvania problem and the Senator and the Governor must be nominated and elected upon the same day by the same people, that it is eminently fit and proper I should discuss, along with other great issues which pertain more directly to the State, the issues of the Senatorship. And I feel that upon this, almost the initial meeting of the campaign, it is fair to you, it is fair to the Democracy of the State, it is fair to the people of Pennsylvania whom we desire to serve, that we should state what is our program if entrusted with power in Pennsylvania. When the people know what the Democracy stands for in our State, when they know this man and the attributions of his character, when they come to recognize that it is a characteristic McCormickism for him to declare as the first pledge in his platform: 'If elected, I propose to be Governor,' the combination will compel his election.

"Now what does the Democracy propose? The people have a line upon us. They may know what to expect. Why? Because, as your distinguished and eloquent county chairman has declared, we showed for what we stood when he lead and made the fight, aye, when he of Pennsylvania won the fight which made Woodrow Wilson President of the United States."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Fraud Paint

The worst mistake one is likely to make in painting is wrong paint; it is easy to make.

We all say "Ours is the best," and there are 1000 of us. One is best; but a dozen are so near on a level that no one knows, for sure, that his is the one.

The worst paints are worst liars; they know what they are, put on a bold face, and brazen it out.

Their one true argument is low price; but low-price paint is always, must be, a fraud; it is made to cheat cheatable people.

We have put in these patterns, only after having fully investigated all of the different makes on the market, and we have concluded that these are the best of them all.

Every pattern is accompanied by a Cutting and Construction Guide. The Cutting Guide shows just how to lay the pattern on the material to cut it correctly, and the Construction Guide shows just how to put the pieces of material together after they have been cut, so that anyone can make up a perfect garment from a Pictorial Review Pattern, whether she has had any experience in dressmaking or not.

We ask you to try just one Pictorial Review Pattern, if you have never used them before, and we are sure you will always want them.

Retired Georgia Planter's Advice To Kidney Sufferers

Regarding the wonderful curative merits of your Swamp-Root, I cannot say too much. After suffering severely for three years or more with severe pains caused by weak kidneys, I was finally induced to try Swamp-Root through a testimonial I read in one of the newspapers. I was in such a condition that I was obliged to arise from my bed six or eight times every night. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and before it was used I felt so much better than I had for a long time. I purchased a one-dollar bottle and by the time this was taken the old pains had left my back and I could sleep the whole night through. I am a retired planter, 70 years of age, and owing to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, I am in the best of health and feel like a boy. I am always glad to recommend Swamp-Root to those who are in need of it.

Sincerely yours,

C. E. USSERY,
Bowersville, Ga.

Personally appeared before me, this 8th of September, 1909, C. E. USSERY, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

A Little Paint Badly Applied.

The play "L'Homme de Destin" was taken from the stage when its triumph was at the zenith. One evening Napoleon, accompanied by his friend Duroc, went in disguise to the Porte St. Martin theater, where the piece was being performed. Eugene Chevalier appearing as the man of destiny. They bought a box, but had hardly entered it when the emperor broke forth in violent execrations against the "fool managers." It seemed that the decorators had left in the box pots of oil and paint, and into these the emperor had stepped. Wild with rage, he rushed from the house and to make matters worse was recognized in the lobby. No paper mentioned the incident, but by order of the emperor the play was never produced again, and Chevalier never appeared again as the man of destiny—and all on account of a little paint badly applied.

Theory and Practice.

Little Beatrice was taking piano lessons and learning at the same time something of theory. Like many other children, she disliked practicing her finger exercises. One day her mother who was working in an upstairs room noticed a sudden lull in the playing. She looked down and saw Beatrice sitting perfectly motionless.

"Beatrice, why don't you practice?" she called down sharply.

"I am practicing mother," replied the child with perfect self assurance. "I'm practicing my theory." — New York Post

Parliament and Congress.

The British parliament and the United States congress have many points of difference. The parliament is practically omnipotent while the congress is subject not only to the provisions of the constitution, but to the president's veto. Congress represents the people, while parliament to all intents and purposes is the people. — New York American.

Thoughtless.

"Did you get them?"

"No, he was out of thoughts as usual." — Boston Transcript.

Another Complaint Recorded.

A woman journalist tells us that in a collection of recent poetry there are poems of dust, rage, fish and tea, and that "woman alone has failed to fan the poetic fires." She attributes it to the fact that woman has descended from her pedestal into the "hurry burly of life."

Look Forward.

Who can see the brilliancy of character attained by individuals of our race without feeling that there is a pledge in this that what has been done already in the individual will yet be accompanied in the nation and the race? — F. W. Robertson.

MOTHER TURK VERSUS THE CLUCK.

Nature, fake hatching and rearing turks with chicken stepmothers have been big factors in putting this country in the turkey graveyard class.

We have seen many fail by this method, and here are reasons for it.

A chicken's hatching temperature is lower and her eggs smaller than Mother Turkey's. Thus while turkey eggs hatch under a cluck they are not so strong, the mortality is greater, and as breeders they do not give so hardy a poult as those hatched in nature's way.

Clucks are generally set in a dry, dusty nest in barn or henhouse. The turkey nests on the ground, where natural moisture aids incubation and stronger poult result. The nest is clean, but the chicken's nest is frequently dirty and full of bugs. Thus eggs are infected and poult infested.

A chicken is too small to brood turks. They soon outgrow accommodations, and some chill. A poult requires longer brooding than a chick and takes longer to feather, but in three or four weeks the stepmother starts to lay and quits them, but big Mother Turkey is roomy, warmer and sticks to them until they go to roost in the trees and there often covers them with her wings.

The cluck knows not how nor what to feed poult. She is a scavenger and drags them to the oozy manure pile, dirty henhouse and filthy hogpen and fills them up with rot and microbes. She stuffs them with indigestible and they die. Mother Turkey tills them away from filth and unlit feed out into the beautiful green fields, where natural protein, the turkey grower, abounds, and there feeds them little but often—nature's way to feed turks. The chicken is boughouse. She cares not if lice cover her from stem to stern. These infest the poult and cause much mortality.

The chicken is domestic. She stays round the buildings. Instead of the green fields, she drags the poult on tainted ground, and that means deadly blackhead germs, tape and gape worms.

Chickens are used by many so that Mother Turkey may keep on laying. But the Creator never intended the turkey to be an egg machine. Forced laying with turkeys, as with chickens, means smaller eggs, infertile and weak offspring.

Hatching turkey eggs late is out of season, out of reason, and the nature faker has little for his pains.

Only the man who hatches, rears, breeds and feeds his turkeys by natural methods can expect success.

DON'TS.

Don't expect poultry to thrive in a damp place. Dampness is deadly to men and hen.

Don't complain because you must serve chicken for dinner instead of turkey. Juicy chicken is certainly a dish not to be sneezed at.

Don't forget that consistency is a jewel more precious than diamonds, more honorable than any royal insignia, a gem that all may wear.

OH, WHAT A CINCH!

When grandpa needed a new suit He caught an old black ram, Quick clipped the wool off his hide And gave it to grandmam.

She spun it on her spinning wheel, She worked it out in hand, And soon your granddad cut a swell suit in black suit so grand.

And if he wanted summer pants She made them out of flax, And if he needed new footwear Your granddad took the ax

And went into his barnyard And knocked a big steer down And yanked the hide right off of him And took it down to town.

That hide was tanned in double quick, The cobbler hit his feet, And there he had a pair of boots The present day can't beat.

And if your granddad sported socks The women left him none, His hannels, mitts and pulse wappers— They, too, were made "to hum."

And when your granddad wanted hats He didn't go to the shop; He simply went into the woods And let his rifle pop.

And down he brought a big fat coon Or skinned a handsome skunk, And soon he sported the best cap Or all dudes in Squeedunk.

No wonder granddaddy got rich. He couldn't help but do it. He didn't spend for this or that; He shot it or he grew it.

C. M. BARNITZ.

TRAP NEST YOUR HENS.

The Oregon experiment station after long and thorough experiments with trap nests declares that from 25 to 50 per cent of hens in average flocks do not lay enough eggs to pay their board.

We often blame the weather, the feed or our human bungling when hens don't lay, but it's sometimes the hen.

She can't lay. It's not in her.

The Missouri and Storrs egg competitions show up the hen and the practical value of the trap nest.

The hens at these contests are entered in competition by poultrymen who think they know a layer when they see her. But the revelation of the trap nest has shown that mighty few humans can pick a layer and that "there is no particular shape or type that indicates good laying qualities, so far as our present knowledge goes."

That's what the Missouri bulletin says, and results seem to prove it.

We have before us photographs of thirty-two of the hens that competed at the Missouri contest.

There is little difference in their appearance, but their trap nest egg records show a difference of from 281 eggs clear down to seven.

One hen didn't lay all year.

The hen that laid only twenty eggs looks just as good as the one that won the individual egg record with a 281 egg record.

Here appearances are certainly deceptive, and really the only way to catch the drones is to trap nest them, and the time to trap nest them is from the time they start to lay in October or November to April, for then is the time that a hen shows whether she's profitable or not.

Trap nests pay. Better buy or make one.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

At the American Feed association session in Chicago it was reported that $300,000,000 was expended for chicken feed in the United States in 1912. Of course this does not represent all that was bought or used, but it's enough to show that the hen business is going some and furnishing sources of employment for many people.

Those who see the large exhibits of the various breeds and varieties of poultry at fairs and shows seldom think of the vast amount of toil, expense and thought that bringing poultry to such perfection has required. A comparison of modern poultry with the old dung hill hen and a study of their product should lead us to appreciate the thoroughbred more and more.

When a hen refuses food try her on raw beef or milk bread. These are seldom refused, and raw beef especially is a good tonic for a weak fowl, but must be given sparingly. Meat foods and fresh, raw cut bones are necessities to the welfare of poultry, help to keep them in health and increase profits, but some feed their fowls none the year round.

The agricultural societies should employ men skilled in feeding and poultry diseases to care for the poultry exhibits. Many of our best fanciers have ceased to exhibit at fall fairs, not because they have no interest in the poultry exhibit or consider themselves too high up to exhibit there, but because they will not expose their birds to unskilled management.

There is an advance in the business of caponizing all over the country, and why not change surplus cockerels into birds that sell for more than turkeys and are easier to raise. Try it and be convinced.

New Jersey is well blessed with poultry associations, and every association is on the hunt for chicken thieves, and in that state chicken thieves get the limit.

A young girl was recently sent to a York (Pa.) market to buy a dressed fowl. Her mother at once detected that the purchased fowl was dressed after it had died of disease. That girl kept the carcass for a week until the seller came to market and then slammed the fowl down on her stand, explained and threatened to inform the marketmaster if the price wasn't at once returned. The seller quickly handed over the cash, but should have been jailed, as all others who do a putrid business.

THEY DON'T WASTE WORDS.

Nyasaland Natives Exist in a State of Partial Coma.

Referring to the native peculiarities in Nyasaland, the author of "Hunting the Elephant in Africa," Captain C. H. Stigand, comments on a certain state of coma into which the "boys" descend when there is no active work for them to do, or at least when there is no compulsion to do it. He believes that the native is capable of assuming a state in which the mind is absolutely detached and not working, and when in such a state he is only recalled by a start to his present surroundings.

The life of the head man of a village in Nyasaland, when not engaged in the strenuous pursuit of his official duties, is something like this: At sunrise he crawls out of his hut, and sits outside. After a short time his wife crawls out and offers him some food. He eats this and then makes his way to a tree, perhaps a hundred yards from the village. Under this he sits in deep abstraction, till about noon a child brings him some food and water. After partaking of this he moves a little so as to get the afternoon shade. He then sits in deep meditation until sunset, when he crawls into his hut and goes to sleep.

Sometimes he is joined by a few other old men under his tree. They hardly ever speak to each other, and if they say anything it is to make some obvious remark, as, "There is a dog." "Yes, it is a dog." "Oh." "Ah," and a further period of silence.

NATURE FAKING.

but often—nature's way to feed turks. The chicken is boughouse. She cares not if lice cover her from stem to stern. These infest the poult and cause much mortality.

The chicken is domestic. She stays round the buildings. Instead of the green fields, she drags the poult on tainted ground, and that means deadly blackhead germs, tape and gape worms.

Chickens are used by many so that Mother Turkey may keep on laying. But the Creator never intended the turkey to be an egg machine. Forced laying with turkeys, as with chickens, means smaller eggs, infertile and weak offspring.

Hatching turkey eggs late is out of season, out of reason, and the nature faker has little for his pains.

Only the man who hatches, rears, breeds and feeds his turkeys by natural methods can expect success.

WALKING

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene

by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D.

Nature intended the human animal to walk. From the dawn of history until a century ago this was the chief method of locomotion for the majority of mankind. Among the multifarious inventions of the last century were included more new methods for the transportation of man than had been known in the previous history of the human race.

The speed with which we can be whisked about on train and trolley is a thing which has made possible our great cities. To their perfection we owe much that is beneficial and some things which are not. Among the latter is the fact that we are forgetting how to walk. How many times have you heard people say, "our new house is most convenient--just half a block from the trolley," or "you know we are right at the elevated station." Office and apartment buildings with elevator service are most in demand.

Walking has come to be looked upon as a burdensome waste of time by the majority of people. A European traveler when asked what most impressed him in this country said, "the fact that your laborers ride to and from work."

No one seems to walk if it is possible to ride. The trolley, railway and auto serve the majority of us in the place of legs. What is the result?

Thousands of business men and women go day in and day out with but a fraction of the physical exercise which Nature intended that every human being should have during his or her waking hours. The easiest and most natural of all exercises is neglected and often looked upon as a positive hardship. Is it surprising that our statistics show a remarkable increase in the number of deaths from Bright's disease and kindred ailments which result from over-eating and under-exercise.

Walk to and from work whenever possible and save doctor bills as well as car fare. This is a rational exercise which you need not fear overdoing and its steady practice will improve your digestion and insure more restful sleep and aid in increasing your resistance to disease.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

April Woman's Home Companion

The April Woman's Home Companion contains the clearest and most interesting report of the militant movement in England that has yet appeared in any American periodical. It is called "John Bull's Militant Daughters" and is written by J. Nilsen Laurvik. The article shows exactly wherein English women are discriminated against by English laws, and although it does not of course justify violence, it at least explains it.

Other interesting articles in the April Companion are: "The New Freedom for Little Children," by Mary Heaton Vorse; "The Other World," by Charles E. Jefferson; "A Two-Weeks' Trip in Italy," by Albert Lee; "Amateur Dramatics," by Sally Conrad Fautleroy; "The World's Greatest Paintings," by Laura Spencer Portor; and "The Kitchen Garden," by Franz Biehler.

The regular fashion, young people's, cooking and housekeeping departments complete an unusually entertaining and helpful number.—Ad.

Scribner's

Out West the old-fashioned county fair is replaced by what is known as "Frontier Days." It is held in large and small places, the most conspicuous example being "Frontier Days" at Cheyenne and "The Round Up" at Portland, Ore. Salt Lake also has developed one of the largest of these shows. W. Herbert Dutton, the artist, will picture and describe some of these stirring fairs in the April Scribner.—Adv.

Osterburg

March 17--Miss Leah Claycomb, an aged and well known resident of near Osterburg, died at her home on Wednesday of last week of diseases incident to old age. She was aged 78 years and was a lifelong member of the Reformed Church. Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. W. Zehring, and interment was made in the Reformed Cemetery.

Prof. J. C. Messner of Lancaster spent over Sunday as a guest at the home of H. E. Mason.

Miss Alma Mason, a teacher of Bedford Township, spent Sunday with her parents, H. E. Mason and wife.

Miss Salinda Moses is spending several weeks in Schellburg. Clay Worrel visited friends at Imletown Sunday evening.

Charles Berry of Philipsburg stopped over Saturday night at the Bowser livery barn with twelve head of horses, which he purchased at the Silver sale.

J. Roy Cessna of Bedford was at this place and surrounding country the first of the week.

A young son arrived at the home of William Adams a few days ago.

THIS STOMACH REMEDY HELPS YOUR FRIENDS

Almost every day some grateful person comes into our store and tells us of benefits received from the use of Reall Dyspepsia Tablets. Do You Want Results?

The first anniversary of the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson as President of the United States and the accession to power in every branch of the National Government of the Democratic party has called forth what is probably the most remarkable tribute ever paid by the American press to a President and a party. Almost without exception the newspapers of America have joined in a chorus of praise of the work of the Wilson administration, and those few critics who have felt compelled by partisan consideration or for other reasons to assail the record of this first year have also been obliged to couple their criticisms with the downright admission that the accomplishments of the administration have proved that Woodrow Wilson deserves a place among the few foremost Presidents of history for his power as a leader, his stern integrity and his unflinching devotion to the principles upon which he was elected.

In the light of this all but unanimous tribute, which invariably begins with the declaration that Wilson has "delivered," that he has "achieved results," that he is the real chief executive of the nation, and that no man and no interest has controlled his thought or his action, Pennsylvania Democrats are within their clear rights in asking to be judged by the records which the President and the National party have made.

It was Pennsylvania Democrats—and those now in leadership in the party in Pennsylvania—who made possible the nomination and election of Woodrow Wilson. A Pennsylvania Democrat—none other than Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer, now a candidate for United States Senator—has been, from the day of Wilson's nomination, at the new leader's right hand, and upon him as directly as upon any other single individual in either branch of Congress President Wilson has relied for counsel and support in all the great undertakings of his administration.

The Democracy of Pennsylvania, as it is represented today in its organization and in its candidates, represents in its ideals, its purposes and its capacity to achieve results identically the Democracy of Woodrow Wilson. If the Progressives of Pennsylvania desire results, if they are more interested in genuine progress than in party names, if they are willing to submerge past differences to accomplish future purposes, if they would recognize merit wherever they meet, they will stand solidly and frankly behind the new Democracy of Pennsylvania and help it to redeem the State.

Progressives have it within their power to utilize the entrenched position, the power and prestige of a successful National administration in the contest for the overthrow of reactionary machine government in Pennsylvania. If they would be brave enough and broad enough to take their place in the ranks of the Democratic party, and under the leadership of President Woodrow Wilson to march upon the citadel of privileges and partisanship at Harrisburg, they would be invincible, and the results which they have so long sought would be accomplished with scarcely any difficulty.

Do they want results?

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. The result was lasting."—Hon. John R. Garrett, Mayor, Girard, Ala.—Adv.

Had Gone Too Far to Change.

Little Helen and Jack had grown up together, and when Jack finally outgrew dresses and donned his first trousers Helen insisted that she, too, be allowed to have a pair. But Jack said: "No, you don't, either, 'cause you started out to be a girl and you've got to keep it up."—Chicago Tribune.
